NEWS NOTES

Harry Barnett will leave for Solomon tonight to remain the summer on one of the dredges in that vicinity.

It is reported that W. E. Doyle will enter the haberdashery business with Jake Kirstens when the latter shall arrive from the outside.

Claude Kell, son of A. H. Kell of this city, will today finish his course in the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis and will receive his commission in the navy.

Mr. M. H. Church will shortly open up a photo gallery in the building formerly occupied by Kaiser on the south side of Front Street near the Delbar store.

The trustees of the Eagle Hall are continuing the improvements started lately with the change in the front entrance. The front will be painted and also a new smokestack installed.

The Pacific Coast Steamship Company's Senator will sail tomorrow on the first trip of the season and will be followed Wednesday by the Alaska Steamship Company's boat, the Victoria.

John Brower of the Bangor Creek dredge came into town last night suffering with a bad case of blood poisoning in the hand. Owing to the seriousness of the trouble he was compelled to enter the hospital where he is now being attended by Dr. Mustard.

James V. Bursik will be the new manager of the A. B. Hall tomorrow, succeeding M. H. Church who has resigned to enter into business for himself. Mr. Bursik is one of Nome's oldest inhabitants and was formerly one of the leading clothing merchants of the city.

The force at the post office have been working overtime in order to get the huge pile of mail brought in by the Bear distributed as soon as possible. The great volume of second class is being handled as rapidly as possible but it will probably be two or three days before the last of the consignment is in readiness for delivery.

An interesting war drama, The Attack at Rocky Pass, featuring Carlyle Blackwell in an exciting role, will form the chief attraction at the Dream tonight and will be followed by two films of unusual charm entitled The Girl in the Arm Chair and The Molding, a pretty story with a very pretty girl in the leading role.

The ladies of the Kegoayah Kozga gave a very delightful luncheon and card party to a number of their friends at the club rooms on Steadman ave. Saturday afternoon. The prizes were won by Mrs. George Reed, Mrs. C. Dease, Mrs. Frank Schels and Mrs. G. J. Loman. The committee in charge of the affair were Mesdames Sheldon, Van Sickle and Irving Reed.

The Street Committee got busy this morning washing down the streets and the resultant look of cleanliness is most agreeable to the eye. It is reported that several kicks were made against the cleanup on the ground that the water would tend to spatter some windows which had been newly cleaned, all of which indicates that some people are peculiarly selfish.

The majority of the Dexter Creek operators are reported to have finished their cleanups and have the proceeds safely stowed away in the local banks. It is said that the most have cleaned up a snug sum as a result of their winter's work. Connolly who was working on the right fork is said to have finished for the season and Brandt and Company are also through with the spring work.

While there were no Memorial Day services held, flags throughout the city are at half mast and the banks and telegraphic office are observing a holiday. The ladies of the Order of Pioneers are reported to have decorated the graves of the few war veterans who are sleeping their last sleep in the local cemetery for which they deserve the hearty commendation of the community which, as a whole, seem to be too busy to give their attention to matters of this nature.

The Nugget has received a copy of Reache's 1915 American base ball guide which for thirty three years has been the official hand book of the American League. The book gives a complete review of the 1914 games and a general synopsis of all the remarkable features of the games last year. The work is profusely illustrated with engravings of the leading players. Everything of value for record or reference is given and the work is every way an excellent addition to the works concerning base ball matters.

Movements of the Yukon river boats furnished by Radio Station, May 31. Davis at Rampart 4:30 p. m. Sunday. Midnight Sun at Fairbanks.

Columbus sail from Fairbanks to Tolovana strike today.

Naustilline up Carmacks 7 p. m. 30th. Mail launch down Coffee Creek.

Canadian down Hootalinqua for wood.

Delta up Gibben for Fairbanks yesterday.

Jeannie from Unalakleet to St. Michael 8 a. m. today.

In the March number of the Red Book appears a story entitled "Tongue Lashing," from the pen of Bertha Knatvold Mellett, a niece of Mrs. R. M. Crawford, and a former resident of Nome. The story is of the North, and unlike many writers of fiction, Mrs. Mellett portrays true characters of Alaska and not exaggerated or imaginary beings. During the past winter Mrs. Mellett had several stories in the Red Book and the publishers of the magazine, in commenting upon her work, characterized her as the "woman who put new life into short story writing." In the March number, her picture appears with other topnotchers, including Irving Cobb, the man who has won renown as a correspondent in the European war.

As announced some time ago, the Hibbard-Svensen Company's steam whaling bark Belvedere will visit Wrangell Island during the summer on the chance of finding the missing explorer Vilhjalmar Stefansson and his two companions, Ole Anderson and Storker Storkerson. The whaler is now due at Petronavlosk Kamchatka, where she will discharge freight for the Russian merchants of that port after which the vessel will proceed to the Arctic on a walrus hunt following up the ice pack as it goes north. The Belvedere made the distance from Seattle to Unalakleet in eleven days which is a record run for that vessel. Mr. Swenson who was in charge of the King and Winge at the time of the rescue of the Karluk survivors last year is on the vessel which is commanded by Capt. A. P. Joachimsen, who was master of the King and Winge at that time.

The Nugget will print your stationery at reasonable prices on short notice.

NEWS FROM STEFANSSON EXPEDITION

The following is a copy of a telegram to the editor of the New York Times from Dr. Rudolph M. Anderson, which was received by Mr. Ralph Lomen from Mrs. Anderson, the wife of the explorer, who is in charge of the southern party of the Stefansson expedition:

SHINGLE POINT, Mackenzie Delta, (via Dawson, Y. T.), Sept. 14, 1914.—The Canadian Arctic expedition schooners Alaska and North Star left Herschel Island August 10 and Baillie Island, Aug. 21, 1914. Both vessels proceeded eastward and established a winter base about fifteen miles east of Cockburn Point on the mainland side of Dolphin and Union Straits, about midway between Cape Bexley and Cape Krusenstern, directly south of Sutton and Liston Islands.

This is a little to the east of the mouth of the Coppermine River. The seas east of the Mackenzie River are unusually free from ice this season. Supplies and scientific equipment were landed with K. G. Chipman, topographer; J. J. O'Neill, geologist; Fritz Johansen, biologist and botanist; and D. Jenness, anthropologist with an Eskimo assistant.

Owing to the scarcity of fuel at the winter base I went west again with the Alaska to Herschel Island for more coal as well as to meet the expected supply boat. With little or no ice ahead there should be a late freeze up and we should reach our winter quarters again in five or six days.

The schooner Mary Sachs with Geo. H. Wilkins in charge sailed from Baillie Island to Banks Land on August 19 and with the ocean around Banks Land free of ice they should be able to advance some distance to the northward in the search for Stefansson's party. No news has been received from Stefansson or his party since the supporting party returned from the ice west of Herschel Island in April. The prospects for work of the southern party are good for the next year. It is well equipped with provisions sledges and twenty-six dogs.

LETTER FROM CHARLEY HERRON

The following interesting items are culled from a letter to the Nugget written by Chas. E. Heron:

The leading lady in "On Trial," the best show in Chicago, was the former wife of Billy Dornberg (Emily Ann Barker) at the time that they were married in Nome. They were divorced and she married Dr. Wellman of St. Louis Mo. She plays under the name of Emily Ann Wellman.

Mrs. Herron and I have spent most of the winter East and at Palm Beach. Fred P. Meyer, formerly of Nome, is cashier of the National Trust Company of Chicago and doing well.

Albert Fink is the leading attorney for Senator Lorimer in the big bank cases and has the biggest case of his whole career. If he gets Lorimer acquitted he is a wonder. Lorimer is indicted by both State and Federal courts in connection with the failure of three Chicago banks.

I bought Major French out of all his Alaska interests in January and I also closed a deal for the property back of Seward. I sold a half interest to New York parties and we will put a dredge to work this spring. Am on train on way to Seattle. Regards to friends.
